Be sure not to skip breakfast

Eating breakfast before school is crucial for school pupils for several reasons. Firstly, breakfast provides the necessary fuel and nutrients to kick-start the day. After a long night's sleep, the body needs to replenish its energy reserves, and breakfast offers the opportunity to refuel. A balanced breakfast enhances cognitive function, concentration, and memory, leading to improved academic performance. Studies have shown that students who eat breakfast are more alert, focused, and able to retain information effectively. Additionally, breakfast positively impacts mood and behaviour, reducing irritability and promoting positive interactions with peers and teachers. Therefore, encouraging school pupils to prioritize breakfast is essential for their physical and mental well-being, academic success, and long-term health.
